

The pain game Terry's tough times

September 2007: Fractures cheekbone against Fulham but plays against Valencia four days later wearing protective mask

February 2007: In Carling Cup final is knocked unconscious and swallows tongue

December 2006: After missing four matches with a back problem, has surgery two days after Christmas, missing a further nine matches

October 2007: Suffers knee injury on eve of England defeat by Russia and has surgery. Misses seven club matches and three for England

December 2007: Breaks three bones in foot during 1-0 defeat by Arsenal. Misses 14 Chelsea matches and Fabio Capello's first game in charge of England

May 2008: Dislocates elbow in clash with Petr Cech against Bolton Wanderers making him a doubt for the Champions League final

August 2007: Misses three matches with knee injury sustained in training

July 2007: Breaks toe against Suwon Bluewings in pre-season. Plays on with painkilling injections